

❖ THE University Impact Forum Asia: Health & Well-being Asia (virtual), 20 January 2022

While the global community is still recovering from the immense physical and psychological toll of Covid-19, scientists are already warning global leaders to prepare for the ‘next big pandemic’.

In partnership with Amrita Vishwa Vidyapeetham, India, this virtual forum will examine whether a shared vision of impact can be realised in terms of universal healthcare and vaccine equity to reach the UN SDG3 targets for good health and well-being.

As governments and the higher education sector recalibrate to prioritise long-term health objectives and progress against the SDGs, we will identify what the significant risk factors are to ensure that the optimisation of public health transcends borders and remains an international priority.

Agenda themes:

- The urgency of making universal healthcare non-negotiable.
- Creating an international standard for vaccine equity
- How the other SDGs complement the advancement of SDG3 for good health and well-being.
- Combating the climate emergency to mitigate the impact of the environment on public health.
- Cultivating more robust health networks and community initiatives within vulnerable communities

❖ Innovation & Impact Summit 2022 - WHAT MAKES A SUCCESSFUL INNOVATION CLIMATE?

We are delighted to be partnering with the prestigious Swedish university KTH Royal Institute of Technology for the THE Innovation & Impact Summit 2022.

The summit will unite leaders of the best and most ambitious universities with policymakers, world-class researchers and the companies that are shaping our future, around the contribution that higher education institutions can make to a successful, prosperous and sustainable innovation ecosystem.

Join us on 26–28 April 2022 in Stockholm, Sweden, to explore some of the deep issues that affect the creation of a positive environment for innovation, and question how research universities can sustain and support that environment. We will debate the importance of talent, regulation, diversity and investment in delivering a prosperous innovation climate, and what kind of impact that may have in the market and in wider society.

Themes:

- How universities can create a national innovation culture?
- Regulating responsibly – is there a role for universities?
- Assessing impact – where can universities make the greatest intervention?
- Lean innovation – the value of diversity.

❖ Call for the Convening of a New Euro-Mediterranean Ministerial Conference on Higher Education and Scientific Research

UNIMED, its members and partners, are calling for the convening of a new Euro-Mediterranean ministerial conference on Higher Education and Scientific Research.

The last Euro-Mediterranean Ministerial Conference on this topic has been organized in 2007 in Cairo, Egypt. Fifteen years have passed but the need to focus on these aspects is today, more important than ever. The Higher Education Institutions have been shaken up by the COVID-19 pandemic and global unrest in the Euro-Mediterranean region. Both the staff and the students suffer from their consequences. In view of the achievements and challenges in the region, it is essential to make new commitments to protect and further develop education, research and innovation, and thus to contribute to the development of human capital in the Euro-Mediterranean region.
