❖ THE - What Makes A Successful Innovation Climate? 26–28 April 2022 in Istockholm, Sweden

In partnership with the prestigious Swedish university KTH Royal Institute of Technology, the THE Innovation & Impact Summit 2022 will unite leaders of the best and most ambitious universities with policymakers, world-class researchers and the companies that are shaping our future to discuss the contribution that higher education can make to a successful, prosperous and sustainable innovation ecosystem.

Join us to explore some of the issues that affect the creation of a positive environment for innovation and to question how research universities can sustain and support that environment.

We will debate the importance of talent, regulation, diversity and investment in delivering a prosperous innovation climate, and what kind of impact that may have in the market and in wider society.

Agenda themes:

- How universities can create a national innovation culture
- Regulating responsibly – is there a role for universities?
- Assessing impact – where can universities make the greatest intervention?
- Lean innovation – the value of diversity
